MEET NATURE PHOTOGRAPHER FRANK COLOSI

Bring your camera and tripod to Wonderfest!! We are so fortunate to have photographer Frank Colosi provide a mini workshop/clinic which will offer tips and settings for basic nightscape photography. Frank specializes in nature photography and has posted some of the most spectacular deep sky/nightscapes, mountains and nature shots on Facebook and his website (www.frankcolosiphotography.com). Seeing the Milky Way in the dramatic setting of Sedona, AZ hooked Frank on nightscape photography. In the 4 years he's been photographing landscape and skies, Frank has become a highly accomplished nature photographer. He especially enjoys nightscape photography because it captures our attention so much. Frank says that there are infinite things beyond our own world and that we are just a speck in something much larger. Frank enjoys the vivid interplay between our backcountry landscape with the night sky. He travels to areas such as Bear's Ears National Park in Utah, to help preserve the memory of the beautiful dark skies and landscape. He is not averse to encountering the unexpected and will wander in the forest or mountains at night, interacting with wildlife. Join Frank at Wonderfest on August 11 as he captures the big scene and the mood of the moment. Don't miss his workshop at 9pm! Photo below left is a fabulous Frank Colosi photograph: Thorne Ranch, adjacent to Jess Martin Park, July 18, 2018.
